

GENIUS Act Rulemaking and Reporting Tracker

As of July 16, 2026

The GENIUS Act is defining how payment stablecoins are issued, regulated, and supervised in the United States. Understanding this evolving framework is critical for banks, fintechs, and other market participants navigating the digital assets landscape. Our rulemaking and reporting tracker is designed to help follow what's coming, which agency is issuing rules, and when rules take effect.

The Guiding and Establishing National Innovation for U.S. Stablecoins (GENIUS) Act (the "GENIUS Act") enacted in July 2025 instructs the prudential bank regulators and the U.S. Treasury to promulgate regulations, and coordinate as appropriate, implementing the GENIUS Act. Majority of the implementation final rules must be promulgated are within one year of the statute's effective date, and GENIUS Act officially takes effect on the earlier of January 18, 2027, or 120 days after final rules are issued. The timeline to promulgate each regulation is set out below along with updates on the status of the notice and comment processes that each of the FDIC, the Federal Reserve, OCC, NCUA, and the Department of the Treasury (FinCEN/OFAC) have initiated to comply with the rulemaking requirements set out in the GENIUS Act. 1. The Federal Reserve Board, FinCEN, OCC, FDIC and the NCUA have proposed rules in parallel to modernize AML/CFT program requirements for entities subject to their supervision to implement provisions of the Anti-Money Laundering Act of 2020. While these proposed rules are outside of the scope of the GENIUS Act, they are relevant as to overall BSA compliance.
